Indiana Dahlias

*Only an ugly tuber! But—
Through the grace of God and the miraculous powers with which He has endowed Mother Earth, what wondrous beauty and source of admiration and joy is contained therein!*

Note the small number near each bloom.
Turn to page 2 for the name of the flower.

A Compendium of Dahlias Worth Keeping

Kunzman

NEW ALBANY, IND.

Important: Read This Page Before Ordering

FIRST OF all, we wish to thank, heartily, all those splendid customers who, despite the 'depressing' times, have sent in their orders the past year. We are sure nothing gave them more pleasure,—made them forget, at least for the time, their financial (and other) troubles,—than the intense interest, expectation and admiration demanded by those wonderful dahlias.

We also feel sure that of all the money expended last season, none was more profitably invested, and your sacrifice so well repaid.

This catalog is the greatest we ever produced in personal interest, in variety of offerings and in value given. No catalog equals it.

We honestly believe that, since the 'depression' is definitely on the go, there never again will be as good an opportunity to get such values. It will pay you handsomely to deny yourself some transient pleasure, just a few times, and invest the savings in dahlia roots, which will give a whole season's pleasure and return you more in value (roots) in the Fall than you invested.

—ooOoo—

To those who have never bought from us: 'Welcome!' We know that if you will give our roots a trial you will be delighted at the results and continue one of our many pleased customers. Read the few (of the many thousands of unsolicited) testimonials in this catalog.

Our roots are grown naturally,—no irrigation, no fertilization (except phosphate broadcast in the Fall), no staking, no disbudding, no pampering of any kind; in fact, they are the hardiest to be had and will produce abundantly anywhere. Are guaranteed true to name, also.

—ooOoo—

Our catalog is unpretentious, without costly illustrations, as we prefer to give our customers the benefit of a lower price.

It contains a list of all the best, both new and old varieties; many of the lower priced introductions of years past are far superior to many of the late introductions, and we believe money is too scarce to 'gamble' away. Our descriptions of varieties are short, but true; if a dahlia, otherwise great, has a bad fault, we tell you so. Lengthy descriptions in superlative language only tend to confuse the mind, and are often misleading. Don't pass up a dahlia on account of its low price,—many low priced ones are the best of their shape and color.

We are glad to see the 'craze' for giant sized dahlias is passing. There never was any sense or reason for it, as the medium sized and small varieties (especially pompons) are the most useful, most artistic, most beautiful in arrangement. What can one do with the clumsy, oversized bloom except to 'show it off'?

Nearly all 'Dahlia Farms' have given their entire attention to the 'giants' because there was little call for the smaller ones, but being personally real dahlia fanciers, we have kept up stock of many varieties even at a loss, doing it for the love of the dahlia and knowing that some day they would rightly be back in popularity. Try some of each—see if we are not right.

A Word About Our Own Introductions

(Names are printed in Capitals, in general list.)

We have been told repeatedly, by growers from many parts of the U. S. that we ought to enter our own originations in the large show places, as they are 'World Beaters.'

However, we never exhibit, in competition or otherwise; we never practice 'high-culture' at any time; we depend on the testimonials and recommendations (always unsolicited) of our many pleased customers, to spread the news, and they do it.

None of our dahlias is ever 'introduced' until we have sufficient natural grown stock to supply the demand for it at a reasonable price. No over-propagation or devitalizing methods are ever used to make a larger increase, thereby devitalizing and weakening the stock.

We know our dahlias and fully guarantee them: "your money back if not satisfied." What more can we do? Try a few.

We have 250 varieties of dahlias we did not list; any varieties we have, inquired for, will be supplied at lowest prices.

—ooOoo—

The varieties in our illustration on cover page are:

- |                       |                 |
|-----------------------|-----------------|
| 1. Romantic           | 7. Silverado    |
| 2. Mrs, A. B. Seal    | 8. Giant Yellow |
| 3. Paramount          | 9. Wonder Pink  |
| 4. Rose Splendor      | 10. Marmora     |
| 5. Orange Wonder      | 11. Splendor    |
| 6. King of the Blacks | 12. Immaculate  |

The small one above Marmora is Baby Pink.

A Page of Odds and Ends

Catalogs are expensive. We want to sell our roots at the lowest possible prices. To do this we must have as little waste as possible. We want our mailing list to consist of all 'live' prospects, so must cut out those on it who are not interested. If you have not ordered from us within the two past years, yet want our catalog sent you, you must send us a card requesting it. We are glad to send it to those interested.

We will cheerfully answer any question we can, but many are sent in, which, if the customer had read the catalog thoroughly would have been answered in it. Read all your catalog.

If you sell dahlias, send your card or letter-head for our Wholesale List.

What A Few of Our Customers Think of Us

"We are very much pleased with the dahlias we get from you; we get better results than from any other." Mrs. L. S. O., ———, Miss.

"We have always found your stock true to name and of the highest quality; it is a pleasure to deal with you." G. F., ———, Kansas.

"Have bought dahlias from you for years and always found them satisfactory." T. C. R., ———, N. Mex.

"The dahlia bulbs bought of you last spring did so well I have sold many more than I can supply. Send your wholesale list as soon as possible." W. T. T., ———, Tenn.

"Received the dahlia tubers in perfect condition—am well pleased. Have bought from you for years and never received any unsatisfactory roots." A. S., ———, Indiana.

"Bulbs ordered from you came today; were so well packed did not feel this the coldest weather of the year. Received a shipment from New Jersey yesterday, frozen." M. P., ———, Virginia.

"Some Indiana friends aroused my interest in your dahlias,—say they can't be beat; so here is my trial order." (We're waiting to hear from her.) C. M., ———, California.

"Have bought dahlias from you for a number of years and have always been well pleased." A. C. M., ———, Minnesota.

"First, I want to thank you again for the lovely dahlias sent me last spring. The ones from California, five of them (price $10.50) never showed an eye,—the other $22.00 worth were all so weak they grew 6 or 8 inches, remained in a stunted condition for a time, then died; all except 5, of the lowest priced ones." G. W. J., ———, Ohio.

These testimonials are only a few of many hundreds received each year. We never solicit them; they are voluntarily sent in by our pleased customers. Don't you want to become one?

How to Handle and Grow Dahlias

(IN A NUTSHELL)

A SUNNY, open location,—soil matters little. Spade well and deeply (when fit to work) and fine thoroughly. When soil has become warm, plant the tuber horizontally, about 6 inches deep and 3x4 feet apart if soil is rich, or 2x3 feet, if soil is poor. Do not water when planting, and never sprinkle your dahlias; soak the soil thoroughly about every 7 or 10 days, during very dry weather; also when in bloom.

Keep the top soil stirred to prevent weeds, and when plants are too large to do this, mulch the soil with waste or leaves of any kind. When plant is a foot or so high drive a stout stake about 6 inches from the plant to tie it to, as it grows, with 'rag' or soft twine. Also about that time, if you want bushy plants, not so tall, cut out the tops, leaving about 3 joints. Fasten your label to the stake. If you want extra large bloom, remove all but the main flower-bud on each branch, and water with liquid manure, but any 'high-pressure' cultivation makes the roots harder to keep over.

Cut your blooms very late in the evening or early in the morning; 'sing' them by holding the ends of stems over a gas flame for a moment or two, or, putting them in about 2 inches of steaming hot water for a few moments (do not let steam hit the blossoms), then putting in cold water.

Several days after frost has killed your plants (the roots mature more rapidly after plant is killed) dig them up, careful to prevent breaking the 'necks' of the tubers, cut the tops off (a pruning shear or small saw) within an inch of the clump and store away. Do not leave a long stem to induce rot, and do not let lie around, they will dry enough in storage.

If possible, store in an old-fashioned cellar, which is generally somewhat damp and cool. If you have no such place available, put them in a paper-lined box and cover all over with damp (not wet) earth, sand or, best of all, peat which can be bought at any large agricultural dealer for 5 cents per pound, or so. Then store the box in as cool, moist a place as you can find, where the temperature does not go below freezing.

Examine the roots about January 1st and about March 1st and if too dry, moisten the earth or peat somewhat; if any rot appears, cut it out thoroughly and dust the cut place with powdered sulfur.

When ready to plant out, use a strong knife to separate the clumps so that each division made, shall have an 'eye'. One tuber with an eye is better than many.

If plant lice, aphid, curly leaf or thrip appear on your plants spray with "Volck," or soap suds and "Black Leaf 40."

Snails and cut-worms often eat the eyes or sprout of a tuber. The best method is to go out very late at night and sprinkle air-slacked lime or tobacco dust around the plant.

If your plant leaves turn white in the fall dust with powdered sulfur on a sunny morning. If your dahlia stops growing after attaining several inches, take up the tuber, wash very carefully and re-plant it.

Some varieties do not produce tubers readily; if the tuber planted in spring has merely increased in size, cut off the tail end leaving it about 4 inches long, split this lengthwise so as to leave an eye on each split division; dust with sulfur and each piece will produce a plant and a clump.

Any further information cheerfully supplied on request.
